DJs dazzle at Kings of Turntables

Cocktails in the wild excites, educates Ugandans

Last month revellers flocked one of Kampala's most popular hangouts for the All Star Edition of the deejay musical showcase, Kings of Turntables. Hosted at The Square by Sir Aludah, the event featured some of Uganda's finest deejays. Judging by the immense turn up, it was clear to see that the Uganda Waragi powered event has fast become a favourite for party and music lovers in Kampala.

The 2017 edition of the Uganda Waragi sponsored Cocktails in the Wild that took place last in Fort Portal was not only an exciting experience but also very educative. The choice of entertainers, venue and above all activities lined up, were as mouthwatering as the word itself. The nature walks, sight-seeing and interactions with communities living near the Kibaale National Park were memorable.

Phenomenal DJ Maphorisa charms Kampala revelers at Ciroc's Sip N' Dip party

Ugandan fans had danced to many of his club bangers and sang along merrily as hits like Particula played on their radios. Nothing though could ever have matched a live experience of celebrated South African producer DJ Maphorisa. The phenomenal hit-maker was in town to headline Ciroc's Sip N' Dip party, which took place at Cayenne Bar and Restaurant last month.

And how Maphorisa left fans out of breath in an evening of absolute fun- the kind to expect when an abundance of good music is complemented by the pure luxury of the ultra-premium Ciroc vodka.

MICHAEL ROSS MAKES COMEBACK AT UGANDA WARAGI'S A KA DOPE

The monthly A Ka Dope gathering of musicians, poets and art lovers took place on Friday, November 3 in a new edition dubbed the A Ka Dope Comeback.

The event scaled to even greater heights, with a new lease of life by Uganda Waragi. On top of the energetic and dynamic music performances, A Ka Dope has seen an addition of an urban party nightlife experience with the Uganda Waragi cocktails immersion.

Salvado confirms he is Comedy King after breathtaking performance in Patrick 'Salvado' Idringi is Uganda's king of comedy. If anyone ever doubted, the "Man from Ombokolo 2" show put all those doubts to rest as Salvado left a sellout crowd at the Imperial Royale hotel in stitches after a one and a half hour performance where showgoers were barely allowed a moment to catch their breath.

The Singleton-sponsored event, which was returning for its second season, had promised even more rib cracking jokes than the first edition. It did not disappoint.
